CLAIMS OF IRISH MARINE.

If Irish Marine were not in the Newbury we cannot trace more than two or three Cup, and if he were not now trained in the same stable which shelters such another usually tormed an orthodox preparation. the same stable which shelters such another dangerous candidate as Lady Eifcen—well, you need no telling who would be a very strong favourite for the Cesarewitch. I Columbus at Yarmouth, we have Crown has picked up a 51bs. penalty for Newbury, and if the intention had been to win that race with him it seems obvious to suggest the Cesarewitch is concerned, though I believe he is a certain starter for the race. race with him it seems obvious to suggest that he would never have been sent to Windsor, for most trainers and owners prefer "doubly sure" to the policy of "half a loaf," etc. And, to sarry reasoning further, it seemed obvious that Irish Marine would not miss the Newbury Cup unless the Cesarowitch—for which his weight of 7st. 131bs. remains unditored—was the goal.

When Dawson's stable accepted at Newbury with Irish Marine and not Lady Eileen, it led many astray, but it is as well to remember that Irish Marine has only recently changed quarters. And whereas Dawson took out Lady Eileen, he left in Mohacz. And it was a further pointor that Mohacz missed the St. Leger, and other less important races—which appeared easy for him—and also refired from all important handicaps, with the exception of the Newbury Cup. New Mohacz is bred on the Rines of a stayer, has won his last three races easily, and is certainly not harshly treated at Newbury with 5st. 1lb., and I expect there will be many to back a second-

Mohazz. And it was a further pointor that Mohazz. and dispassionately. Don't take any "if" about a horee being fit: if you bet now, sort out the doubtful brigade as I have done, then do your own reasoning about a horee being fit: if you bet now, stable intentions, and back one—or two-from the live remainder who would appeal to you say, if you were looking at the hars dicing for the first time, and had not to go round the street corner for information before you wrote down your little inxestments. Of course, there are one or two among the "doubtfuls"—such as Jackdaw, lance Cheet. Ultimus, and Clarenceur—which I think very well in the race, but they would be no earthfy use to me if I rang up my commission agent this morning and asked him to book me one or two small wagers at current odds.

SURSTANTIALE WAGERING.

SUBSTANTIAL WAGERING. SUBSTANTIAL WAGERING.

Tootles has settled down to Tara's old position as chief fancy. I purposely avoid saying first favourite, for that suggests to me far more substantial eupport from the right quarter than there has been for anything to date. There is, however, often some fairly substantial wagering about the unquother candidates. Take the case of Eton Boy, my first selection for the Cambridgeshire. You cannot fail to have noticed that he that been one of the most notable of Oambridgeshire entrants which has not been paraded in the day-to-day Iondon market eturns. And yet there are all sorts of rumours of other people getting ou before the stable stepped in. All the same, I think you will find him at the post for the Cambridgeshire all right, and that Trigg will again ride him.

In fact, if I were asked to take a chance at present over a double, I should take the risk and select IRISH MARINE and ETON BOY

And if a treble tickles your fancy, how about the following:—

VOLPLANING TACKLER -Many spectators are convinced that some day Arthur Collins, the Fulham half-linck, will break Collins, the Fulham half-back, will break his leg. How he has avoided doing so so clong is a mystery. He is the owner of a remarkable tackle. There are others, perhaps, who may do it sometimes, but Collins has specialised in it, and nine times out of ten he uses it. He seems to leap in the fair and come down as if volplaning, with both feet out and together. It is wonderfully successful, and he rarely misses get to the fully successful, and he rarely misses get to the fully successful, and he rarely misses get in the past, but not as a result of this particular tackle, and it is possible that he never will be.

M.C.s. INDEEDI—Spendiff and Mollor provided some excellent gealkeeping for the $25,000 people who witnessed the match between Milkvall and Norwich City on Saturday. They were M.C.s. indeed—that is, masterly custodians. Both wore red jerseys, and both were alike in stature and style. There was no fumbling with the ball, for as soon as it was within their grasp they disposed of it in businesslike fashion, to the delectation of the spectators. Spendiff is fast becaming a favourite with the New Cross crowd. There is much about him requiniseent of "Tiny" Joyce, and, moreover, he always kicks the ball well over the half-way line. Mellor, too, has lost none of the old form that brought fame to the Brighton, Sheffield, and other teams for whom he has appeared in goal.

be beaten by 3 goals to 0.

They showed much the better football in the first half, and were never clearly inferior to their trained opponents in the second. Tottenham one a deal to Lunn, who kept goal brilliantly.

He saved many difficult shots in masterly style, secral elearances from Noble, who was the best forward on the ground, commanding general admiration. The Tottenham backs, Collins and Brittan, were often beaten for pace, but on the whole their display was satisfactory.

The halves were not as reliable, and three of the forwards—Tattérsall. Jones, and Young—were absolutely weak, while Minter and Middlemiss only played in the manner expected of such accomplished exponents in the second half.

Minter claimed all the goals—which were obtained in the second half—two from close range, the other as the result of a tremendously fast long shot.

There was no weak spot in the Bromley team. The goalkeeper, Hunter, refused to allow a heavy collision with an opposing forward to affect his form; the backs tackled and kicked lustily all through, while MoWhirter was clearly the best half-back in either team.

The visitors' forwards were generally safely held by the Palace haives, and when they did manage to pass this trie they simply could not overcome the rock-like defence of Bulcock and Collyer.

PACE THE BEST.

Pace IHE BES!.

Pace was always initiating attacks for Croydon, but the forwards were slow to seize the opportunities presented them, and over when Allman and Walker got through there was no stung in their shooting.

Of the Palace team the defence was undoubtedly the best part, Spottiswood, Hughes, and Hatton generally bearing the brunt of the Croydon attack and saving Bulcock and Collyer any anxiety. Garratt and Davies were seen to advantage on their respective wings, and Lloyd worked strenuously.

would, was to Watson. Pace at left half, was the best of the visitors. He is not very big, but he always had a lot to do with the breaking up of the Hewitt-Garratt combination, and did as much work as any one. Yenson also did well at centre half. The backs, Little and Hutchins, could not be compared with the Palace pair.

There were too many infringements of the rules to make the game pleasant to watch, and it was from one of these that the winning goal accrued. Davies had the ball on the last, and was boring his way in towards goal when Little upset him ir an illegal manner just outside the penalty area. Davies took the free kick himself and Smith's head did the rest. This occurred fifteen minutes from the start.

No blame could be attached to the Croydon goalkeeper for not saving, and seeing that it was Watson alone who saved the "Robins" from a heavy defeat, it was hard lines he should have had a goal registered against him in such a manner. Next to Watson, Pace at left half, was decisive victory by no fewer than 6 goals to 2 in the first round of the London F.A.

Before this Summers is likely to meet Mehagan in a special contest, as Mr. Fred Hooper, who is looking after Summers interest, is endeavouring to obtain from the Australian champion a slight concession regarding the weight restrictions he is imposing.

Carpentier has been notified that he must complete his match with Papke in Paris on October 22 before he enters into any agreement to meet Bombardier Wells prior to that date. Bright and interesting football was witnessed at Champion Hill in the London Challengo Cup game between Dulwich Hamlet and Chelsea vesterday, the professionals winning by 3 goals to 0. Chelsea had Cartwright, Dolby, and Steer playing instead of Bettridge, Brown, and Turnbull.

In the first half, when Chelsea scored the only goal through Steer, it was obvious that the professionals were taking things rather easy, but the amateurs were trying very hard to score, and the efforts of Green and Evans, on the Hamlet left wing, were of a very high order.

Up against a pair of backs such as Cameron and Cartwright, Green, who is a very little fellow, did some clever things and roused the Hamlet supporters to a high pitch of enthusiasm. The men who stood out in the Dulwich side were D. K. Wight, centre half, who was always a source of worry to the Chelsea men, and Percy Beales at left half. Hegazi was right off his game and missed several capital chances of scoring.

Of the Chelsea men, Fairgray, who scored the last goal, was about the best, and if he had been fed more assiduously in the first half it is safe to say the score would have been even larger than it was.

The second goal was obtained by Taylor Terms free on application.
